

So many of us say that we "love Bali", but what does that really mean?

According to the English Heritage Society, loving something means understanding it, valuing it and of course caring for it. This is part of what is called the "virtuous cycle", and is something Bali - and all those on it - should learn to do. Our Publisher talks in more detail in this month's Soapbox.

Of course, we can love Bali but we can also be in love whilst in Bali. Yes, other than being the Island of Gods, this is also the Island of Love where people come with a significant other in ALL phases of their relationship: dating, engagements, weddings and honeymoons! It's all happening here. So we're celebrating The Month of Love, sharing the best places for Valentine, Weddings and Popping the Question! Also we share a look into a Honeymoon Package at The Stones Legian.

As always, Bali is buzzing with new and exciting things - this week take a peek into Bali's newest lifestyle destination, OMNIA Dayclub Bali, and discover where to celebrate Chinese New Year with family and friends - the InterContinental Bali Resort.

Wishing you a love-filled Valentines Day and a luck filled Chinese New Year!

The Month of Love

That's right ladies and gentlemen, the month of love has returned - and aren't we on the right island for such an occasion? When it comes to love, Bali is home to many of its milestones, be it a romantic getaway, engagement or of course the full-blown wedding. So, whether you're taking that special someone out on a hot Valentine's Date or finally popping the question, we've got you covered.

Valentines Day: Special Dinners and Experiences

Whilst we strongly believe that a healthy relationship requires some love and attention every single day (amen to that!), Valentine's Day is a good time to show a little extra, to make that special someone feel special once again. These stunning Bali venues are helping you out, with especially romantic set ups ready for you both on the 14th of February 2018.
